The salmon need the forest.

The forest needs the salmon.

And Scotland needs them both.

Riverwoods is a spectacular and compelling visual journey that shines a light on the perilous state of Scotland's salmon and the degraded river catchments we have come to accept as normal. Riverwoods shows how Scotland's life-rich rivers have been greatly diminished but crucially, how they could be reborn through a shared vision of restoration and recovery.

The feature-length documentary filmed and produced by rewilding charity SCOTLAND: The Big Picture, tells the story of an inextricable relationship between fish and forest.
